

Margaret Meloni is President of Meloni Coaching Solutions, Inc., a company devoted to helping you successfully navigate the human side of the project world. It is Margaret's honor to support you through these two ventures: eLearning4PMs (www.elearning4pms.com) and A Path to Peace (www.MargaretMeloni.com).

Her background in IT Project Management and PMO Leadership; enables Margaret to understand that managing projects can be difficult. Her special emphasis is on soft skills training for project managers.

Through A Path to Peace (www.MargaretMeloni.com) she focuses on helping professionals become free from the work related conflict that prevents them from having good working relationships and impacts the quality of their personal lives.

By providing multiple eLearning options for project managers via www.eLearning4PMs.com she is able to deliver the right learning at the right time. Learning can occur online, offline or anytime. Her wish is to see her students take on tough projects and emerge as strong and sought after project managers.

You can learn more about Margaret and her courses, programs, and products at eLearning4PMs.com and MargaretMeloni.com

“How to Deal with Toxic Personalities and Create More Peace in the Office.”

Toxic personalities can wreak havoc on your team. As employees are forced to work – and cope – with their difficult co-workers, morale drops, collaboration decreases, and productivity slows. And you can bet that some of your star performers will soon be heading for greener pastures – with other organizations – once they've grown tired of your dysfunctional team.

Walk away with:

- The ability to identify various types of difficult behaviors that can damage your team.
- Strategies for dealing with difficult co-workers and employees so that you can work together effectively.
- The ability to identify triggers that can cause YOU to become a difficult person.
- The understanding of whom and what you can really control.

Remember that other people's behavior is not about you, it is about them.

Who are Margaret's clients?

Margaret works with :

- Corporate professionals
- Business owners
- Solopreneurs
- Entrepreneurs
- People who understand that peace and professionalism can co-exist.
- People who are ready to manage conflict productively and bring peace to the workplace.

Margaret's clients are saying...

“Your presentation was terrific! People who did not even attend have been contacting me asking for the slides. I guess great news travels fast.”

“Your presentation was so valuable to our group.”

“I've been a leader for years, yet I still learned so much from you. Thank you for being such an authentic teacher.”

“EQ and You”

Your ability to experience success at work and beyond is absolutely tied to your ability to get along with others. We are talking about your EQ.

EQ is the acronym for Emotional Intelligence. Not only do you have an IQ (Intelligence Quotient), you have emotional intelligence. Is it important to understand the technical aspects of your job? Yes! But.....

You need more. You NEED emotional intelligence. You need to be able to handle yourself and others, you need to build relationships. Good news! EQ can be developed. And that is what we will do in our time together.

When you leave you will understand the components of Emotional Intelligence AND walk away with tools to help you boost your own EQ.
